Thanks for buying the Rusty Bumper Puzzle Book!

(If you haven't donated, you still can: go to http://blog.ivanlogan.com/the-rusty-bumper-puzzle-book/). Guranteed to never need recharging, able to survive being dropped in a river crossing, this book has been designed to survive the trials of crossing the Australian Outback in a car costing under $1000 dollars. This book is split up into several different puzzle types. The following sections will explain them and help you get started.

Sudoku

The game requires competitors to fill in a three-by-three square grid (broken into nine mini-grids) with numbers one to nine, arranged so that each line, column and mini-grid contains one of each number. Each puzzle has a logical and unique solution.

Sudoku is a Japanese word and means "number single". There's no maths involved. The grid has numbers, from 1 to 9, but nothing has to add up to anything else. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic. Solving time is typically from 10 to 30 minutes, depending on your skill and experience.

Wordoku

The rules for Wordoku are the same as for Sudoku, but with a twist. The letters together make up a nine-letter word. Guess the word and compete the square to solve the puzzle.

Target

The aim of this puzzle is to complete as many words as possible using as many letters as you can from the word-square. However, every word must contain the centre letter (shown in black) and all letters can be used only once.

Kakuro

Kakuro are crossword puzzles that use number rather than letters. The grid border contains "across" clue numbers and "down" clue numbers. The challenge is to insert numbers into the grid so that the numbers in each row and each column adds up to the corresponding clue number.

You may only use a number once in the row/column. For example, an "across" clue of 10 for a row with four spaces can be filled with '2','3','1','4'; it cannot be filled with '3,'3','2','2' since these numbers are used more than once in the sum.
